The Customs Tariff Question.

As we feared would be the case, the tariff question is cropping up in the already begun election canvass in such form as demands serious attention. An insidious attempt is being made to create the impression throughout the rural districts that the local Legislature will have, for ten years to come, the right to say what kind of a tariff shall prevail in British Columbia, and the people are admonished to accept neither the Canadian tariff nor the British Columbia tariff, but to strive for one altogether different from both. It will scarcely be necessary, one would hope, to point out that this mode of stating the question is most erroneous, calculated, if, indeed, it is not intended, to lead to wrong conclusions and even to the most pernicious consequences. At the risk of fatiguing the reader with tiresome iterations upon a subject already threadbare, we venture once more to state the case fairly and in accordance with fact: In negotiating union, British Columbia asked for power to deal with certain tariff questions. Our Delegates were met firmly on this point. They were told that the Customs Tariff was essentially a Federal question, with which no Provincial authorities could be permitted to deal. In order to meet an exceptional condition of things, the Canadian Government would be willing, however, to delay the application of the Federal tariff until such time as the colony should be connected with the railway system of Canada, conceding to British Columbia the right meanwhile to retain its existing tariff. Afterwards the local Legislature asked the Canadian Government to consent to a reduction of the duty on flour to 75 cents a barrel, on wheat, to 10 cents a bushel, and on spirits to 80 cents a gallon,—with a view to the retention of the present tariff so modified. This the Government, as might well have been anticipated, and as was predicted in this journal, declined to do. Nevertheless, in his report upon the subject, the Finance Minister thus remarked:—“Should the new Legislature concur in the recommendations of the Legislative Council, the Dominion Parliament would, in the opinion of the undersigned, be inclined to consider them favorably.” Now, it is to be observed that this mere individual opinion of a single member of the Dominion Cabinet could certainly not be considered as in any way committing that Cabinet or any member thereof upon the point. The circumstances under which that opinion was expressed should also be carefully kept in view. Union was still pending, and the diplomatic expression of such an opinion might smooth the way, while it in no manner compromised the Government. It will further conduce to a fair and intelligent understanding of the subject to keep in view the fact that the opinion thus casually and, doubtless, diplomatically expressed, had sole reference to the three specific reductions asked for by British Columbia before entering the Confederation: Yet, notwithstanding all these modifying circumstances and influences, there are those in this colony who do not hesitate to affirm in the boldest and most unqualified manner that the Dominion Parliament will consent to the asked-for reductions, because Sir Francis Hincks said it would! The reader has seen how Sir Francis Hincks said it would,—or rather, how he said nothing of the kind. But the reckless and unscrupulous political demagogues referred to are not content with asserting that these specified reductions will be made. It were well did they content themselves with such a declaration, wholly unjustified though it be. But they go far beyond that, hesitating not to tell the people that they can have any kind of tariff they may choose during ten years! How true it is that one false step leads to another. As the matter now stands, if the local Legislature, at its next session, should renew the request for the three specific reductions in the present tariff, with a view to its retention, there is no reason to doubt that the request would be submitted to the Parliament of Canada; but there are good reasons for believing that Parliament would not be inclined to consider the request favorably. First, because to do so would be to tamper with a fundamental principle of the constitution; secondly, it would be most inopportune to attempt to give still better terms to the Pacific Provinces in the very next session after the hard-fought battle to secure the excellent terms upon which she entered; thirdly, to attempt anything of the kind would be for the Government to bring all the other Provinces about its ears, clamoring for ‘better terms’; one of the Provinces even now being an applicant for the choice of tariffs presented to the people of British Columbia would still be confused to the Canadian tariff and the one now in force, with that slight modification. That would, after all, be the full extent of the choice, a very ‘Hobson’s choice’ indeed, for we unhesitatingly maintain that the present tariff, even with the proposed modifications, would prove infinitely less adapted to the interests of this Province than would the Canadian tariff. Under the former our people would still be called upon to pay annually into the treasury at Ottawa, very large sums of money in excess of what the people of the sister Provinces will pay, in excess of what it is just and right they should pay—sums which would, in the course of the so-called exceptional period of ten years, foot up millions! In conclusion, we must express the severest condemnation of the conduct of those who, knowing better themselves, are willing to trifle with the dearest interests of the people and make a political hobby-horse out of one of the most important political questions which can engage the attention of the elections at the present time. Such dishonesty in dealing with great public questions merits the severest reprobation.

The Scott Centenary.

One occasionally hears the question, ‘What is the object or advantage of celebrating the approaching centenary of Sir Walter Scott?’ It is well that people should be ever ready with a reason for what they do, and especially for what they urge others to do; and, on general principles, we do not feel disposed to discourage a question which might to some partake of a spirit having little claim to consideration. The first, and perhaps the popular reason assigned for celebrating the centenary of Sir Walter Scott, is the same as that assigned for cherishing the memory of great and good men,—a tribute which continues to be paid down the ages to talent and worth. But it occurs to us that there is another and more practical reason for this particular celebration. It is greatly to be feared that interest in and love for the works of Sir Walter Scott are waning,—that the younger generation has turned aside to feed on more stimulating, though less wholesome mental diet. Those, and there are still some left, who remember when the reading of Scott’s novels was regarded as a luxury, a recreation granted to the young as a favour or reward, and engaged in with delighted avidity, cannot fail to be perplexed if not saddened at observing so many of the youth of the present time rejecting Scott as dull, dry, insipid, and drinking in with feverish ardor the alcoholic, vitriolic trash of the sensational school—frivolous and false, vulgar and vicious. Do we not find in this deplorable tendency of the time a good argument why the world’s tribute about to be paid to the memory of Scott should show full magnitude and fervent spirit? The sight of a whole nation’s heart, a whole civilized world’s heart, strongly moved must tend powerfully to raise the respect, or at least the interest, of the young, and lead them towards those pure fountains where to drink is not merely to be refreshed, but to be strengthened and purified, made fitter for life’s duty and meted for life’s highest reward. The centenary celebration, in so far as it is properly conducted, will tend to rekindle those fires in the human soul which once burned so brightly under the magic touch of Sir Walter Scott, but which the light and trashy, the drossy literature of later days has well nigh smothered. If the celebration tends in any considerable degree to revive a healthy appetite for wholesome mental diet it will have served a wise and useful purpose.

ILLINOIS has strange ways, even of committing suicide. In Warrensburg recently Mrs Alice Day discovered her husband had another wife, and shot herself dead. The husband, who was in prison for bigamy at the time, when he heard of the self-murder of one of his consorts, was so overcome by sorrow and remorse that, having nothing else within his reach, he swallowed a box of books and eyes, a bottle of hair dye, a brass breast-pin, several pieces of glass, six wet cantons, and a small penknife. These miscellaneous articles did not prove fatal, but at last accounts Day complained of indigestion.

NEWS! NEWS!
The "British Colonist" is the only newspaper published at Victoria that receives the latest telegraphic dispatches, as a comparison will prove. Late telegrams appearing in any other paper are copied without credit 24 hours after they have appeared in the British Colonist. The circulation of the British Colonist being double that of any other paper published in British Columbia, it offers the best medium to advertisers.

OMINECA.
LOST IN THE MOUNTAINS!

PROBABLE DEATH OF THREE MEN!
Messrs Geo Babbington and Bryan Brady left Arctic City on the last day of June and arrived by a Thimspian canoe yesterday morning. They bring no later news, but are of opinion that the creek diggings will prove good when the water falls sufficiently to allow of active operations. The lower part of the creek is shallow diggings and will be quickly worked out. The upper part will be deep diggings and it will require capital to reach the pay-dirt. The Cornish Co had made good wages on the bench on which the town stands, but had knocked off work owing to a disagreement about the water-ditch. The benches had all been tried and nothing was found that would pay wages, although shafts had been sunk to bed-rock. The Edwards and Victoria Co, a mile above the New Discovery claim, had sunk shafts 20 feet deep in the bench and had not reached bed-rock. They were much troubled with quicksand and water, but expected to reach a stratum of gravel soon. Two ditches had been dug through this trench and the companies intended to turn the creek as soon as the volume of water had lessened. It was said on Black Jack Gulch a prospect of $2 had been found.

Our informant, with five others, were lost for ten days in Frynburg Pass, between Tatlah and Babice Lake—having missed the trail, which was not properly blazed. They were four days without anything to eat, save nettles and roots. On the morning of the 5th day they were reduced to great straits—some of the party being scarcely able to walk from weakness. One of the party caught a dead fish floating in a lake. This was divided between four. They then built a raft and poled and paddled across the lake. When half way across, a storm of wind came up and the raft barely escaped being capsized, the water washing over it at times. They finally reached the opposite shore, where they encamped and cooked a lot of alder leaves for supper. In the morning one of the party caught a trout, weighing one pound, with a hook, which was divided between three. No other fish were caught and they recrossed the lake and crossed a mountain. On the side of the mountain they encamped for the night. In the morning Mr Babbington shot a grouse which proved a perfect God-send to the starving men, who ate bones and all ravenously.

The party separated after breakfast—four of them taking a backward track in the hope of catching fish and finding the trail. Our informant and one other resumed the tramp. The same morning Mr Babbington shot two more grouse and soon after fell in with one of the four men who had left them in the morning. He stated that he had missed his companions. The two grouse were then cooked and divided into four equal portions. Much refreshed by this meal, they reached before nightfall the summit of a high mountain, where they were nearly devoured by mosquitoes, which are very numerous throughout the whole district. The next morning they were overjoyed to recover the trail and found a white man and a squaw who had also been astray. From the man they obtained a pannikin of flour, of which they made a little gruel. The following morning they started back for Tatlah, when they fell in with Mr Dewdney and a party of Indians. He generously supplied them with provisions and they followed him to Babice Lake. The three men who wandered off were not afterwards heard of and it is feared that they have perished. The names of two of the missing men are John McLeod and John Ballister, Englishmen. The other was an Irishman, name unknown.

During their wanderings the party saw but little farming land—nothing but mountains, mountains, mountains! There are some fertile valleys lying east, one of which Mr Dewdney had started to survey. There were many bear, moose and caribou tracks, but no animals were seen.
On the way out three weeks ago, Moore's train, with Smith & Sterling's goods, was met half-way between Babice Lake and the Forks of Skeena, bound in. Sterling was half-way up the Skeena River with goods. Five large Indian canoes, laden with goods, left the mouth of Skeena on the 24th ult, bound for the Forks. The trail was about one-fourth finished and is of a most creditable and substantial character. The press-down was pleasant and the weather fine. Saw the whaling schooner Dominion off Cape Mudge. The schooner Discovery, for Nainaiu, five days from Victoria, was seen off Captain's Pass on Monday. The Otter was met off Horby Island on Saturday last.

Requisition.—A requisition to the Mayor, Mr Robertson, asking him to allow himself to be placed in nomination for the city in the Local Parliament, is in circulation and has been numerously signed. Mr Robertson (of whose return we entertain not the slightest doubt) will make a valuable member of the local Parliament.

ARCADIC OYSTERS.—Levy's Arcade Saloon may be seen 1 eaten the largest, sweetest and best oysters in the market, the first of the season. 1 oysters are cultivated near Olympia, T, and are a great improvement upon the oysters usually retailed in this city.

THE CENTENARY.—At Edinburgh yesterday the Scott Centenary was celebrated with great éclat. See dispatch.

THE FRENCH LOAN.—The French loan has all been subscribed, the applications being far in excess of the amount required. The amount of the loan is eighty-four hundred million dollars, in a 5 per cent. stock at the price 82½, 12 per cent. to be paid on application, and the remaining 70½ in sixteen monthly instalments. Discount at the rate of 6 per cent. will be allowed on all the instalments if immediately applied for. The deduction of this discount makes the price of the 5 per cent. stock 78.27, which will give a fraction over 6 per cent. The whole amount was taken up almost at sight, to the astonishment of the world, and probably no parties more surprised than the Germans whose demands had been represented as more onerous than the defeated nation could bear, and they were expostulated with in relation to their severity. No sooner, however, are the terms settled and Paris had to make itself free of the foul scum of Communists who, under the name of progress, sought to prey upon the country in its moment of weakness, like a crowd of marauders who on the night, succeeding a great battle, crawl out from every neighboring tree or bush to rob the dead and wounded, and slaughter the latter, than the nation lays down the money to clear the field. It is said nothing so chagrined a sharp dealer than to have money asked promptly paid; the sharp regret at not having asked more is difficult to bear. If so, France has enjoyed that revenge. The money power of France having been so greatly undervalued, it is quite possible her taxable power is also undervalued. The world has heard a great deal of the extravagance of that Empire, but eighteen years of commercial progress has underlain that extravagance, resulting in a financial strength which had not been dreamed of. It will be a worse event even than the war, if the evident progress should now be checked by the destructive protectionist theories of M Thiers and his coadjutors.

RELICS OF A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.—The schooner Surprise, from the West Coast, brought up three anchors and 60 fathoms of chain, which were recovered from the wreck of the British bark John Bright. The terrible tragedy connected with this wreck must be still fresh in people's minds. How the captain with his pretty young wife, little children, and seven of his crew, reached the shore in safety; how they were received at the beach by savages, who shot and stabbed them all to death; how the Indians stripped and mutilated the bodies and left the bones to bleach on the shore, where they lay until tardy justice overtook the murderers, who have been hanged upon the very spot where they had committed the crimes. The wreck has long since gone to pieces or been buried beneath old ocean's grey and melancholy waste; and the anchors alone remain to call to mind one of the most terrible massacres that ever occurred on the North Pacific.

CHINESE BURGLARY CASE.—A second examination of this case, which was remanded from the 7th inst, came off yesterday and the following facts were elicited:—On Wednesday the 2d inst, Ah Hoey, the prisoner, and two other Chinamen broke into the house of Wa Yon in Market Alley. The prisoner took a ring forcibly from the finger of a Chinawoman named Ilee and another of the robbers took two dresses and some hats and another tried to stab the woman with a knife. An instrument of iron, covered with cloth, was also in the hands of one of the aggressors, which was produced in Court. The examination went to show that the case was of a more serious character than was at first supposed, and in order to have fuller information in regard to all parties concerned, the examination was postponed until Monday next.

SKATING.—A San Francisco paper notices the extraordinary benefit derived by ladies and others of sedentary occupations or habilitated from the use of the roller skates. It would appear that since the introduction of the skates instances of dyspepsia and indigestion have become extremely rare among those who have used them. In this city, we are told, the same effect has been observed by frequenters of the rink, some of whom have been martyrs to indigestion for years and now claim that the exercise of skating has done them more good than a whole apothecary's shop of medicine.

The mode in which stock raising is managed in England is shown by the following extract of a private letter from near London: "Last week I went to a sale of pedigree stock, and saw some splendid prices paid for them. One cow, only two years old, sold for over £850; a calf, six months old, for £210; and the suckling calves for £25 and £30 each; while £2,000 was offered and refused for a bull! The owner is very wealthy, his income being from £60,000 to £70,000 a year, and he thus can pay or refuse large sums for blood cattle. His farm buildings are the finest I have ever seen, not only having every convenience, but being fit to last for at least a century."

EVERY SATURDAY, by a new process, is trimmed, neatly pasted, so as not to disfigure the paper, and held together as securely as if stitched. The machine which produces this result is the invention of Messrs Chambers & Co., of Philadelphia, and was made by them under arrangement with Messrs James R Osgood & Co., especially for Every Saturday. It is the only machine of this kind in the world and is really a wonder in its working, accomplishing the various processes of folding, pasting and trimming at one operation.

The funeral of young Densey, yesterday, was numerously attended. The pall bearers were two members of each house company in uniform and the coffin was borne on the Deluge hose carriage which was draped in mourning, and was drawn by the company of which deceased was a member. The Fire Department, the Officials and friends of the family were largely represented. The service at the Cathedral was performed by Rev Father Kirley and Rev Father Mandart. The Cathedral was densely crowded. The scene at the grave was very affecting.

THE B O WHALERS.—The schooner Dominion, with the B C Whaling Co's party, was seen off Cape Mudge a few days ago. They had taken five whales, two of which were large. Whales, however, were very scarce south of Esclaiha Rapids. But north of the Rapids they were quite numerous.

REVISION OF VOTER'S LISTS.—The Courts of Revision in the various districts must sit between the 10th August (to-day) and the 20th September. The sooner the better.

THE INDIANS ALONG THE COAST are kept in a state of beatific drunkenness by the whiskey-sellers. Fire-water is more plentiful than ever.

BANKRUPT COURT.—August 9—R O Cameron.—The bankrupt passed his last examination, the Chief Justice remarking that he had acted most honorably and honestly. Mr Drake for the assignees; Mr Bishop for the bankrupt. R O Keyser. The action was directed to be continued against J P Davies, he having paid a certain sum into Court to abide the issue and security for costs to be given by defendant.

ON ITS LAST LEGS.—Assembly Hall is rapidly sinking and one of these days the public prints may have a tragic item to record. The removal of this tumbledown edifice was ordered by the Corporation some time ago and it was sold with the condition that it must be removed within a few days.

GAME.—There was a large demand for quail yesterday, and the valleys and hills to-day and on many subsequent days will resound with the sharp crack of fowling-pieces as they deal death right and left by the game. The woods in this vicinity abound in grouse.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

Eastern States.
WASHINGTON, Aug 8.—Pleasanton has written a letter to the President declining to resign his office as Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He requests the President to reconsider his present determination, and asks that the matter of difference between himself and Secretary Boutwell be referred to the Attorney General for his legal opinion.
Within two hours of the receipt of this letter the President sent him a notification of his suspension. The immediate cause assigned in official circles for the suspension of Pleasanton are that the internal revenue was not collected with efficiency; that Pleasanton disregarded the ruling of his predecessors in several important particulars and made decisions from the effects of which the public receipts suffered unnecessary decrease; that he acted independently of and did not consult with his superior officers as to the law and other matters of administration and that the change was necessary in order to secure harmony in the working of the Treasury Department. Pleasanton is suspended until the end of the next session of the Senate and Douglass is to perform the duties of the office in the meantime.
The report recently circulated that Charles Francis Adams declined the appointment of arbitrator under the Treaty of Washington is incorrect. From President to-day received a telegram from that gentleman informing him of his acceptance.

The main points will be—the principles of the Council of Constance in 1314 the subordination of the Pope to the Council, separation of Church and State, free elections of Bishops, Communal elections of Pastors, modification of Confessional. Delegates are divided in opinion as to whether the Church should acknowledge the supremacy of the Pope.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A telegram has been received from Mr Macdonald, from Berlin, that he has negotiated a convention with the German government with interchange of postal money orders between that country and the United States. The treaty will not take effect until October 12th, owing to the fact that the German authorities are required to give one year's notice to the North German Lloyd's steamship company.

PARIS, Aug 8.—The Germans have commenced the evacuation of the forts north and east of Paris.
VERSAILLES, Aug 8.—The Assembly today passed an indemnification bill, compensating the people of the provinces for the loss and damage suffered during the year either from the enemy, or from the French troops, after due investigation of the claim and settlement of the amount. It also authorized the Finance Minister to draw immediately the sum of one hundred million francs among the most needy claimants.

A bill providing for a system of compulsory and gratuitous education throughout the country was passed. The committee having the subject under consideration has signed a report in favor of an income tax.
The Court Martial for the trial of the Communists has continued the examination of witnesses. Mr Ferey for the accused, attempted to make a speech defending the Communists, but was not permitted to proceed by the President of the Court.

Liberia.
New York, Aug 9.—News is received from Liberia that the Presidential election of May 2d, apparently resulted in the election of Roberts as President and Gardner as Vice President. President Roberts, however, maintains that he was elected for four years, and as his term has not expired, he may dispute the validity of the election of Roberts and Gardner.

Wilo Ate Roger Williams?

The imperishability of matter and its metamorphoses receives a curious illustration in the following account of a search for the remains of poor Roger Williams:
"Ninety years after his death, in 1771, steps were taken to erect to him a monument, but the storms of the revolution came on and the work was forgotten. But the question has been agitated anew, and Williams may yet at last have some outward sign to mark his greatness and perpetuate his name. During a period of 183 years not even a rough stone had been set up to mark the grave of the founder of Rhode Island, till the precise locality of the grave has been almost forgotten, and could only be ascertained after the most careful investigation. Suffice it to say, however, the spot was found, and the exhumation made a short time ago, though there was little to exhume. On scraping off the turf from the surface of the ground the dim outlines of seven graves, contained within less than one square rod, revealed the burying ground of Roger Williams. In colonial times each family had its own burial ground which was usually near the family residence. Three of these seven graves are those of children, the remaining four were adults. The eastern grave was identified as that of Mr Williams. On digging down into the "chamber house," it was found that everything had passed into oblivion. The shape of the coffin could only be traced by a black line of carbonaceous matter, the thickness of edges of the sides of the coffin, with their ends distinctly defined. The rusted remains of the hinges and nails, with a few fragments of wood and a single round knot, was all that could be gathered from his grave. In the grave of his wife there was not a trace of anything save a single lock of braided hair, which had survived the lapse of over 180 years. Near the grave stood a venerable apple tree, when and by whom planted it is not known. This tree had sent two of its main roots into the grave of Mr and Mrs Williams. The larger root had pushed its way through the earth till it reached the precise spot occupied by the skull of Roger Williams. There making a turn as if going round the skull, it followed the back bone to the hips. Here it divided into two branches, sending one along each leg to the heel, where they both turned upward to the toes. One of the roots formed a slight crook at the knee, which makes the whole bear a very close resemblance to a human form. This singular root is preserved with great care, not only as an illustration of a great principle of vegetation, but of its great historic association. There were the graves, emptied of every particle of human dust! Not a trace of anything was left! It is known to chemistry that all flesh, and the gelatinous matter giving consistency to the bones, are resolved into carbonic acid gas, water and air, while the solid lime dust usually remains. But in this case, even the phosphate of lime of the bones, of both graves were all gone! There stood the "guilty apple-tree," as was said at the time caught in the very act of "robbing the grave!" To explain the phenomenon is not the design of this article. Such an explanation could be given and many other similar cases adduced. But this fact must be admitted—the organic matter of Roger Williams had been transmitted into the apple tree; it had passed into woody fibre and was capable of propelling a steam engine; it had bloomed in the apple blossoms and had become plant to the eye; and more, it had gone into fruit from year to year, so that the question might be asked—Who ate Roger Williams? It is quite probable that the apple pie of New England may have derived their world-wide fame for nutritiousness from that Ghoul-tree of Rhode Island.—Christian Leader.

The first mention of a silver brick is made by Sir Francis Drake in an account of his voyage in 1577. When going into the Port of Africa he found, besides other wares, seven and fifty silver bricks, each of which weighed twenty pounds.
